

I have personal experience with AOL trying to force small servers out of business. They are succeeding. We need to return to the sort of regulation that protects everyday Americans from people and corporations with more money than morality.